“ I think it??s your site, your voice. We have personal responsibility for what we have control over. It seems to me that choosing a free speech policy for your own site is giving up your voice. I think the free speech argument is the top level?C that looks at the aggregation of all voices. If you were a hosting provider, it??s different?C you??re providing the soapbox, not the voice; for your own little piece of it you either take responsibility or don??t.
