“ More than 40 years ago when Mary Kay was the PR person for Alberto Culver, she held a press conference at Manhattan’s luxurious Plaza Hotel. I was an editor for Hearst’s Motor Magazine at the time, so this kind and generous lady invited me to her press conference luncheon. It was a great meal, and my pretty cousin eloquently presented her product, a room and auto deodorizing gadget. Although our magazine was aimed at mechanics rather than consumers, i told my boss that the floral scented thingy had to go in our new products section. A bit of arm twisting did the trick, and Mary Kay’s fragrant tchotchke appeared among the wrenches, tires and carburetor rebuild kits in our publication . It’s still there in the Hearst archives. But this lovely lady has moved on. Rest in Peace, cousin.

“ My name is Mary Kay, so instantly, Mary Kay Oswald and I had a special bond. I haven't known her very long; but, I felt that we had a special connection beyond our name. We attended Immaculate Conception Church and frequently met there for Mass. Then, she moved to The Admiral, where my sister, Dee, lives. Dee and I often had dinner with Mary Kay and enjoyed her enthusiasm, positivity, depth of spirit, smile and great laugh! She was a wonderful friend. We will miss her dearly.
